THE BURDENS OF THE DAY.
BY BAYARD TAYLOR.

Who shall rise and cast away,
First, the Burdens of the Day?
Who shall rise and cast away,
First, the Burdens of the Day?
Who shall rise and cast away,
First, the Burdens of the Day?

Lo! we groan beneath the weight, Our own weakness create;
Creak the knee and shut the lip,
All for many a fellowship;
Load our shack, complaint lay With the Burdens of the Day!

Higher paths there are to tread; Fresher fields around us spread;
Other flames of sun and star Flash at hand and lure afar; Larger mouth might we share, Surer fortune—did we dare!

In our mills of common thought By the pattern all is wrought;
In our school of life, the man Drills to suit the public plan,
And through labor, love and play, Shifts the Burdens of the Day!

Power of all its right of none!
Right each to reach the sun To the breadth and liberal space Of the independent race—To the chariot and the steed, To the will, desire and deed.

Ab, the gods of wood and stone Can a single sainted throne But the people who shall aid Against the puppets they have made?
But at the puppets they have made?
Tis the Burdens of the Day!

Thunder shall we never hear In this ordered atmosphere?
Never this monitory feel Shattered by a trumpet's peal?
Never shall that bar and blow From eternal sunbeams know?

Though no man resent his wrong, Still feel the poet's song:
Still, a stung, his thoughts may leap Over the herded swine and sheep,
And in pictures far away Lose the Burdens of the Day!

The following letter was handed to us for publication by our friend Cant.
Hoskin. It is a copy of an original letter written by Benjamin Franklin in 1734; of its authenticity there is no doubt, as the son of Mr. Frohisher, to whom the letter was addressed, gave it to Mr. Allen, register of deeds, in Boston, Mass., who in turn gave it to Dr.
Dunne. The letter is now in the possession of Francis L. Bancroft, of Tiffin, Ohio.

PHILADELPHIA, June 6, 1733.

DR. SIR:—I received your kind letter of the 2d instant and am glad to hear you increase in strength. I hope you will continue mending till you recover your former health and firmness. Let me know whether you still use the cold bath and what effect it has—

As to the kindness you mention I wish it could have been of more service to you, but if it had, the only thanks that I should desire, is, that you would be equally ready to serve other poor folks who need your assistance and so let good offices go round, for mankind are all of a family.

For my own part when I am compelled in serving others, I do not look upon myself as conferring Favors, but as paying debts. In my Travels and since my Settlement I have received much kindness from Men to whom I shall never have an opportunity the least direct Return, and numberless Others from God who is infinitely above being benefited by our Services.

Those kindnesses from men, I can only return on their fellow Men; and I can only show my gratitude for these mercies from God by a readiness to help his other children and my brethren; for I do not think that Thanks and compliments, tho' repeated weekly, can discharge our real obligations to each other, and much less those to our Creator.

You will in this see my notions of good Works, and that I am far from expecting Heaven by them. By Heaven we understand a state of happiness, infinite in Degree and eternal in Duration, I can do nothing to deserve such Rewards. He that for giving a Draught of Water to a thirsty Person, should expect to be paid with a good Pluck-tion, would be modest in his demands, compared with those who think they deserve Heaven by the good they do on earth. Even the most imperfect pleasures we enjoy in this world are rather from God's goodness than our Merit, how much more so then the Felicity of Heaven? For my own Part I have not the vanity to think I deserve it, tho' I expect, nor the ambition to deserve it; but content myself in submitting to the will and disposal of Him that made me who has hitherto preserved and blessed me and in whose paternal goodness I may well confide, that he will never make me miserable, and that even the afflictions I may at any time suffer shall tend to my benefit.

The Faith you mention doubtless has its use in the world. I do not desire to see it diminished, nor would I lessen any Man, but I wish it was more productive of good works. Works of Kindness, Charity, Mercy, and public spirit, not Holy day keeping, sermon reading or having performed church ceremonies, or making long prayers filled with flatteries and compliments, despised even by wise men, and much less capable of pleasing the deity. The worship of God is a Duty, the hearing or reading sermons may be useful; but if a man rests in hearing or praying as too many do, it is as if a tree should value itself upon being wanted, and putting forth leaves tho' it never produces any fruit.

Your great Master thought much less of these outward appearances, and professions than many his modern disciples, he preferred the Doors to the more Heavens. The son who seemingly refused to obey his Father and yet performed his commands to him that performed his commands and yet neglected the work, and the hypocritical though charitable Samaritan to the uncharitable sanctified priest, and those who gave food to the hungry, drink to the thirsty, raiment to the naked, entertainment to the stranger and relief to the sick, tho' they never heard of his Name, he declares in the last day shall be accepted when those who cry Lord, Lord, who value themselves in their Faith, tho' great enough to perform Miracles, but have neglected to perform the works of Benevolence, shall be rejected. He professed he came not to call the Righteous but Sinners to Repentance, that there were some in his time so good that they needed not even hear him; but now a days we have scarce a Person who does not think it the duty of every man within his reach to set under his wretched administration and that whoever omits them offends God. I wish to such more humility, and to you Sir more Health and Happiness being &c. B. FRANKLIN.

"THEY SAY"
No words can condemn too strongly the grosser and more malignant forms of backbiting and scandal. The ancient laws, "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor," "Thou shalt not go up and down as a tale bearer among thy people," are for all time. The Private opinion of such conduct is generally and justly given to example: "He who utters scandal slands a very fool;" "He who goeth about as a slanderer revealeth secrets; but he who is of a faithful spirit con-cealeth a matter;" "The words of a tale-bearer are like sportive ones, yet they go down into the innermost parts of the body."

There is, however, a somewhat milder form of this evil, of which too many are more or less guilty. It appears in the case of the insignificant, speaking half apologetic phrase, "They say—" The speaker is generally being distinguished with something damaging to the character of the person spoken of. Several persons meet at an evening party or in the street, when the name of some one not present is introduced, and with with a view of the company's quietly, gently and with a friendly sympathy or respect, and a desire, or so much disapprobation in the tones of his voice, to the following effect. "They say he has a great many bills in the market and will find it difficult to meet them." Or, "They say that his bankruptcy was a good thing for him." Or "They say that he is a perfect bear at home." Or, "They say he didn't marry the woman he wanted." Or, "They say she is very fond of dress, and gettings unknown to her husband." Or, "They say no servant says with her longer than a month; they can't bear her." Or, "They say she is not what she pretends to be."

These are fair average specimens of sayings that may not perhaps be slanderous, but which are decidedly misleading. It is not necessary to look far for the reason of their use. Men believe even of others in re readily or easily that they believe good. A late writer exposes this sad habit of human nature in the following decisive terms:

"How comes it that the evil men say spreads so widely and lasts so long, while our good, kind words don't seem somehow, to take root and bear fruit some? Is it that in their stony hearts there is a place to grow? Certain it is that scandal is a good, brisk talk, whereas praise of one's neighbor is by no means lively hearing. An acquaintance glibly, scorned, derided, and served with mustard and cayenne pepper, excites the appetite; whereas a slice of cold friend, with courteous jest, is but a sickening, cloying meat."

The expression "they say—" is most generally used in retailing small scandal. The speaker in effect says, "Now I am not responsible for this, I do not vouch for its truth; but you were speaking of Smith." Well, they say—and out comes something not at all to Smith's credit. Observe: the speaker does not wish to give you the unclean things as from himself; he carries as it were, a pair of moral tongs, by which he handles the matter, and when he has put down his tongs, he says, "I am not dirty."

Can-robert protect Nancy? No.

A youngster, seeing the sky very red a night or two before Christmas, called:
"Mamma, old Santa Claus is getting ready to take cakes."

MacMahon's 'support' at Worth was a complete failure.

AMERICAN SLAHO.

The utter ignorance of the English of the significance of American slang expressions, often causes some curious scenes between them and Yankee buyers in England, who seem to think that because their language generally is understood, all their American idioms will be. An expert buyer, junior partner in one of our large establishments, at a recent visit to his correspondent in an English manufacturing city, was complimented by the senior partner of the house, who insisted on personally showing goods to the American purchaser.

"There, sir," said Dowlas, throwing out a roll of goods, "what do you think of that?"

"Oh, that's played out," said the American.

"It's what?" said Bill.

"It's played," said his customer.

"Played—ah! really—we call it played in England; but this isn't played—you know."

"No," said the Yankee. "I don't mean played. I mean to say it's gone up."

"Oh, no," the Britisher, "not at all; it's not gone up; quite the contrary. We have taken it down from the price."

"Over the felt, its three pence too high now."

"No doubt of it, but our neighbors on the left are not manufacturers."

"Very likely, but I don't care about being stuck when I get home."

"Really—most extraordinary. Is it as dangerous in New York as the papers say?"

"Yes, but I don't want these goods.
I've got some already that will knock the spots out of 'em."

"But my dear sir there are no spots on the goods, I assure you. They are perfect."

"Well, well, suppose we switch off on these goods and try something else?"

"Certainly," said the Englishman, to the infinite amusement of the American's friends, called a clerk with a wipe-o-m and directed him to switch off and dust, while he proceeded to show something else.

"There, said the Englishman, triumphantly spreading out another fabric. "There's the handsomest piece of goods in England—just a guinea a yard."

"I can't see it," said his customer.

"Can't see it? why, you're looking right straight at it. However, suppose you try the light of this window?"

"No, I don't mean that," said the American. "I have n't got the stamps for such goods."

"Stamps! no stamps are required but a bill stamp, which we are happy to furnish."

This misunderstanding might have continued longer, had not one of the younger members of the house, seeing his senior's perplexity, reached the Yank and put him through after the manner of his countrymen.

CAVES IN THE OZARK MOUN- TAINS.

The existence of several remarkable caves in the limestone regions of Missouri, has been known to the generpublic for years. Some of these caverns have been explored and descriptions written of the subterranean wonders contained therein. One of the most remarkable caverns is located on Dr. Fischer's land, about six and a half miles south-east of Springfield, among the Ozark mountains. It was visited last week by a party from this city, and, as little has heretofore been known about its peculiarities, a brief account of its striking features from one of the visitors, may not be devoid of interest.

The mouth of the cave is at the bottom of a deep ravine, to which a rather steep descent is made for nearly a mile.
The cave is on one side of rather an abrupt hill, and from its mouth there issues a clear and cold stream of water, thirty feet in width and four feet in depth. A boat capable of holding ten persons in readiness with a guide to ascend the stream; and candles were provided, and all necessary preparations made for the voyage into the recesses of the cavern. Thus provided, the ascent against the current was made without much difficulty. The air was cool, the lights were reflected upon the water, and the moisture from the ceiling, which fell in round drops, resembled a shower of pearls. The average height of the roof above the stream is fifteen hundred feet.

Hundreds of beautiful stalactites were seen hanging from the natural archway, some in clusters. The outside of these icicles were encrusted with a substance of a "grayish yellow" hue, but the tips had a vitreous appearance, and in some cases were translucent. The tips were hollow, but the tabular form soon became solid where the stalactite was thicker. The length of these pendant cones, caused by the constant accumulation of carbonate of lime gathered from the dripping of the water from the ceiling, was four or five feet.

After proceeding some distance, the explorers came upon an arm of the cavern which branched off into a huge pocket or chamber, which was twenty yards across, and wedge shaped. The floor of this chamber was paved with a multitude of small basins or cups, formed by the constant dripping of water upon the floor of the cavern. The drip-falling on the soft, substance, excavated these dish-shaped vessels, the rim of which rose above the general surface of the floor.

These natural cups were filled with limpid water, from which the party drank freely. Leaving this singular spot, the voyagers resumed their trip up the underground stream, and after proceeding about 200 yards they came to a small cascade. The fall is caused by a ledge, which crosses the cavern stream and is about three feet higher than the level of the stream below. The roaring of the water of this chute was heard at some distance.

The depth of the water below the fall is five feet, and it was estimated that they were half a mile from the point.

Above this fall, the cavern bifurcated into two branches. The main stream comes down the right fork, but leaving their boat, the explorers went some distance up the left fork. The cave narrowed and widened alternately, but at length the roof got so low that they were obliged to proceed in a stooping posture.

This mode of progress becoming too fatiguing, further progress was abandoned, and the explorers set out on their return. The boat floated down rapidly, and a hole was only made to observe a beautiful formation on the right shore within only two hundred yards of the mouth. This was apparently a sheet of alabaster, rising gradually over a jutting table of lime resembling a low stream of milk suddenly frozen.

The party soon made their exit to open air, much gratified with their exploration.

The excavation of this cavern was doubtless caused by the ceaseless flow of water, that still carries on its rasping work, and consequently is not due, as is the case in many other caverns, to which have long ceased to operate.—

ANECDOTES OF ADMIRAL FAR- RAGUT.

He was at Norfolk when the rebel hot broke out in 1861. His friends and relatives immediately endeavored by appeals to his ambition, and representations of his domestic ties and aspirations.

"You are by birth and natural symthies with us; they say, and you can command any position in the confederacy you may desire."

Faragut did not leave them long in doubt, or even long to the mouth of such suggestions. He answered the first plan and direct proposal made to him to turn traitor in words which betrayed his unusual passion. Pointing to the national colors yet flying above the navy yard at Norfolk, he exclaimed:

"Gentlemen, I will see every man of you eternally damned before I would raise my arm against this flag!"

Sinking Slowly.

Diseases that progress rapidly to a crisis are not the only ones to be dreaded. Cancer or dry rot does not blast a tree as suddenly as a stroke of lightning, but unless rested, it destroys it as certainly; and in a like manner chronic debility, although it does not kill with the swiftness of yellow fever, is as sure to sap the springs of life eventually as any acute disease, if not checked.

by invigorating medicine. There is something irrepressibly touching in the spectacle of premature decay. Languor, pallor, emaciation, depression of spirits, and a distaste for exertion, are its ordinary symptoms and they should be promptly met by a tonic treatment. The best invigorant, and exhibition that can be administered in a case of

C. F. GALTON'S DYSPEPSIA REMEDY.
In offering this remedy to the public, we feel confident that every statement we make in regard to its curative properties will be fully verified by all who avail themselves of it. The remedy has been used in this city nearly ten years, and has never failed to effect a permanent cure whenever used in accordance with the directions, and the patient has had sufficient strength of mind to abstain from rich and indigestible food for a short time. In case of Heartburn, Waterbrash, Constipation, and Nervous Headache, arising from indigestion, and all ailments which are produced from an action of the important organs, the stomach, it will afford prompt relief.

As an evidence that our statements can be fully relied upon, we refer the reader to the certificates below:

"For a number of years I was greatly afflicted with dyspepsia, and although my stomach craved food, it would immediately reject it, should I eat anything, no matter how small the quantity. I was frequently compelled to leave the table without being able to take any nourishment. It is a short time since I became very much reduced in flesh, and was so weak that I was unable and unfit to attend to my business. My mind was in no better condition than my body. As I was continually oppressed with headache and depression of spirits, I tried all the patent medicines and prescriptions that I heard of, and some of these afforded me temporary relief. In a short time I relapsed into my former condition.

While suffering in this manner I heard of C. F. Galton's Dyspepsia Remedy, and concluded to try it. I had taken it but a short time when I began to feel better, and continuing to take it, I soon could partake of my meals without any disagreeable feeling either while at the table or afterwards, and gained flesh rapidly. It is now nearly six years since, and I have continued free from the disease, like a return of the dyspepsia. I can therefore recommend it to any one suffering in like manner.

"Respectfully yours, Andrew J. Schaeffele, "Pittsburgh, March 20, 1874."

"This is to certify, that during the early part of the summer of 1868 my wife was much troubled with dyspepsia. She had a severe pain in her side, her appetite was variable, and she became quite emaciated. After having used two bottles of C. F. Galton's Dyspepsia Remedy, her appetite became good, and she was relieved from the severe pain in her side, and her complexion became good again, all of which I attribute to the use of C. F. Galton's Dyspepsia Remedy, and I have recommended it to all my friends and acquaintances. All that I can do to make its curative properties known, you can rest assured will be done.

"Respectfully yours, J. A. Schaeffele, "Pittsburgh, Pa."

If you are suffering do not hesitate to buy a bottle of C. F. Galton's Dyspepsia Remedy, and wait yourself of the curative properties.
